

The Strategic Peer Support Programme

Supporting senior clinical leaders to strengthen their leadership capabilities and deliver lasting quality improvement

Are you a clinician with directorate or board level responsibility? Are you working in an organisation that is facing significant challenges in driving forward service transformation and quality improvement?

Apply to join our pilot Strategic Peer Support (SPS) programme and receive support from experts in your region.

This new venture from FMLM and NHS Improving Quality will pair you, if you are successful, with someone who has practical experience of quality improvement or service transformation. With facilitated learning sets and access to developmental resources from the Chartered Quality Institute and BMJ Quality, this will be a real-time, supported solution to challenges you currently face in driving forward continuous improvement in health and care.

About the Strategic Peer Support Programme

The programme commences in January through to September 2015. Participants are encouraged to attend the virtual orientation session on the 28th January 2:00pm – 3:30pm and also the launch event at the FMLM conference in Manchester on 23rd February 2015. The formal programme will commence following the launch event in February, and participants are required to attend three essential development days held on 18th March (London), 8th July (Leeds) and 16th September (Midlands/South) 2015. These days give the opportunity for the peer network to come together to learn, share and problem solve. Peers can expect to take part in a 6-8 peer support sessions (2-3 hours per session). These sessions may be held either face to face or virtually to meet the needs of the pairs.
